Homophones - There, Their, and They're

• Homophones are words that have the same sound as another word but have different spellings and meanings.
  - There - Used when talking about a place (It must be nice to live there.)
  - Their - Used to show possession (Put their jackets in the closet.)
  - They’re - Used as a contraction for they and are (They’re my best friends.)

Choose the correct homophone in parentheses to correctly complete each sentence.

1. Please place _____________ leftover food in the refrigerator.
   (their, they're)

2. I would like to walk past _____________ soon and gaze at the scenery.
   (their, there)

3. _____________ not home right now so we’ll leave a note in the mailbox.
   (There, They're)

4. I would like to go swimming, but _____________ not here to watch me.
   (their, they're)

5. Patty volunteered to put _____________ homework in the basket.
   (their, there)

6. You can see the baseball game perfectly if you sit over _____________.
   (they're, there)

7. This is _____________ secret hiding spot.
   (their, there)

8. _____________ going to be so proud when they see your grades!
   (Their, They're)

9. You can find some amazing books over _____________ in the corner.
   (there, they're)